Moore Industries Promotes Charles Larson to Director of Technology

NORTH HILLS, CA—Charles Larson has been promoted to Director of Technology at Moore Industries-International, Inc. Larson currently is Software Development Manager, and will continue in that capacity.

“Charles’ broad survey of technology will be better utilized in a newly created role intended to strengthen the link between strategic product direction and product design strategies,” says Leonard Moore, president of Moore Industries. “As Director of Technology, Charles will provide a bridge between Marketing and Engineering to help us develop and optimize the commercial exploitation of our intellectual property portfolio.”

Larson has a BSEE from California State Polytechnic University Pomona and a J.D. from Northwestern California University. He is a Registered Professional Electrical Engineer and a member of the California State Bar. Prior to joining Moore Industries in 1998, Larson ran a small engineering design and custom manufacturing firm for twelve years where he gained broad experience in the Oil and Gas, Petrochemical and Instrumentation industries.
